

Product Manager Nexus

The product manager nexus highlights the product manager's role at the intersection of external markets and internal teams. They act as a bridge, gathering insights from customers, competitors, and industry trends to guide the product strategy. Internally, they collaborate with cross-functional teams like engineering, marketing, and sales to ensure alignment and successful execution of the product vision.

